

TALARRUBIAS

FOUNTAIN OF THE FOUR RESERVOIRS – TALARRUBIAS (BADAJOZ)

DESCRIPTION

The Fountain of the Four Reservoirs is located in Plaza de España in Talarrubias, constituting a singular urban element that stands out for its symbolic character and its representation of the town's natural surroundings.

It is a fountain with an original design that attracts attention due to its unusual configuration within the traditional urban landscape.

HISTORY

The fountain reflects a contemporary concept linked to the enhancement of the territory, conceived as an identifying element of the municipality in relation to its hydraulic environment.

Its creation is directly linked to the importance that the reservoirs have had in transforming the landscape and in the economic development of the area.

HISTORICAL AND ARTISTIC DESCRIPTION

The design of the fountain symbolically reproduces the principal reservoirs surrounding Talarrubias, creating an ensemble representative of the region's water landscape.

It is traditionally associated with the reservoirs of Zújar, Orellana, Cíjara and García de Sola, although the municipality also maintains a close territorial relationship with the La Serena reservoir. From a formal perspective, it is a fountain of monumental character, conceived more as an interpretative and decorative element than as a traditional structure, integrating into the central space of the square as a visual landmark.

MOVABLE HERITAGE

The fountain represents the importance of the reservoirs of Zújar, Orellana, Cíjara and García de Sola, not only as elements of identity for the municipality and the region, but also as symbols of prosperity in an area where water is one of the predominant elements linked to the territory and its people.

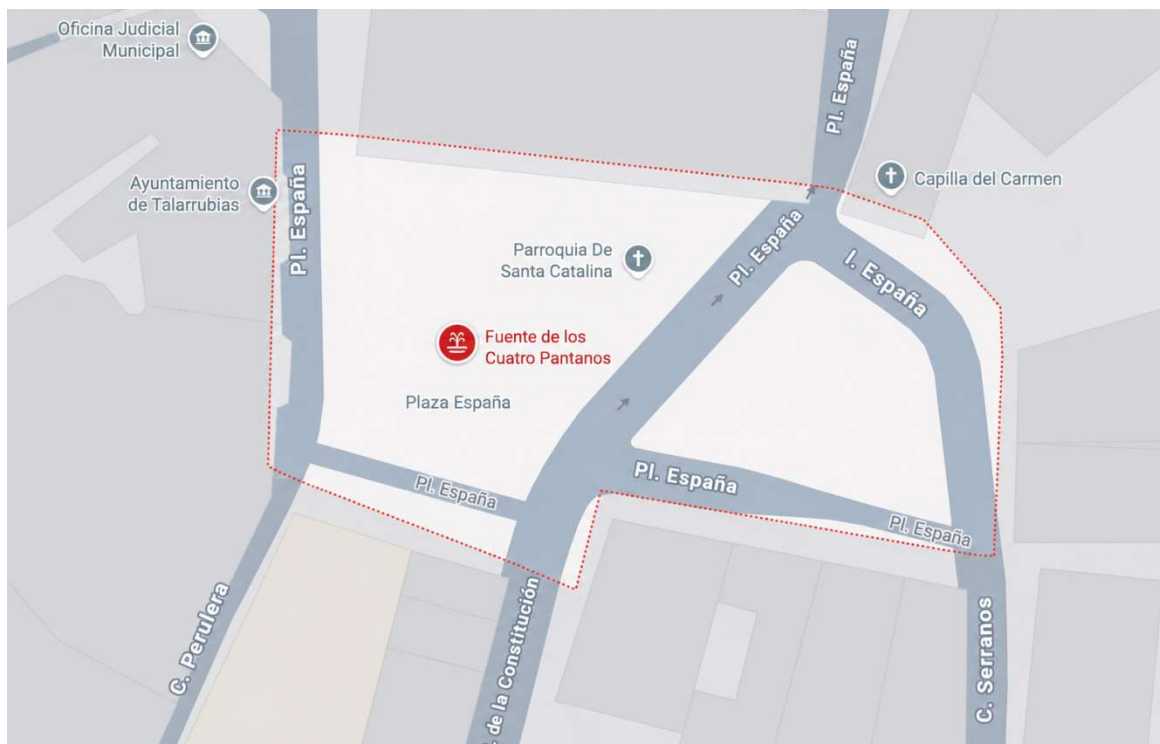

INTANGIBLE HERITAGE

The fountain acts as a symbol of the territorial identity of Talarrubias, closely linked to the water and reservoirs that have shaped its landscape and way of life.

In addition to its ornamental function, it constitutes a visual reminder of the role of water in the recent history of the region, especially in relation to the transformations derived from the major hydraulic projects of the 20th century.

Its location in Plaza de España reinforces its status as a meeting point and landmark within the daily life of the municipality.
